Art transports visitors to new realms (Photography: Pixelshot)

Feeling the blues and in need of a dose of art in life? Our comprehensive list of art galleries in Hong Kong will offer you a fresh perspective.

This city is more than just restaurants and shopping malls. In Hong Kong, there are an amazing array of Hong Kong artists creating brilliant artwork that resonates with audiences from across the globe, including Zlism, The Forest Mori and Ophelia Jacarini. If you're looking for art galleries in Hong Kong – from the heavy-hitters who give you access to the masters to the independent galleries who showcase the best new rising talent – we're here to show you where to find it.

Check out these art galleries in Hong Kong

1. Young Soy Gallery

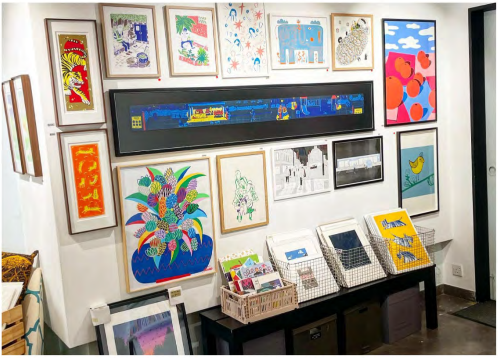
2. Hong Kong Palace Museum

Rare artifacts from on display (Photography: 香港故宮文化博物館 Hong Kong Palace Museum via Facebook)

A relatively new addition to the West Kowloon Cultural District is the Hong Kong Palace Museum, enabling the study and appreciation of Chinese art and culture in our city. With priceless treasures on display in Hong Kong for the first time ever, along with precious art objects on loan from the Louvre Museum, Hong Kong Palace Museum is the place to be for casual and dedicated art lovers alike. For the first year of its opening (July 2023), admission is free on Wednesdays, so run – don't walk to grab your tickets now!

Hong Kong Palace Museum, 8 Museum Drive, West Kowloon, Tsim Sha Tsui, Hong Kong, p. 2200 0217

3. Odd One Out



Whimsical prints to brighten up your walls (Photography: Odd One Out via Facebook)

As one of the earliest galleries in Hong Kong that focuses on illustration, graphic arts and printmaking, Odd One Out has been promoting artists from Hong Kong and further afield since 2012, in a bid to bring affordable prints to the masses. Featuring the likes of Kylie Chan, Saki Obata and Ronan Leung, this is where to head if you are looking for the perfect wall-furniture for your apartment or if you need a quirky gift.

Odd One Out, 16/O, International Industrial Centre, Kwei Tei Street, Fo Tan, Hong Kong, p. 2529 3500

4. M+ museum

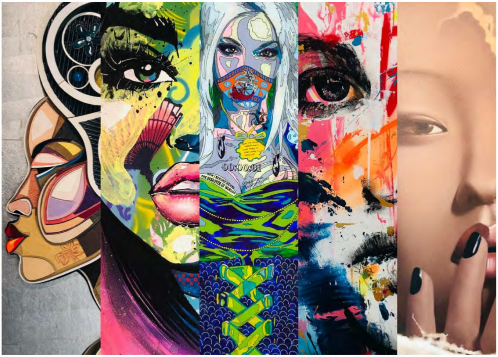
M+ houses a world-class collection of modern and contemporary art (Photography: M+, West Kowloon Cultural District via Facebook)

Another addition to Hong Kong's art scene, the M+ museum includes 33 galleries in its 17,000 square-metre exhibition space. The exhibitions explore the different contexts that have shaped arts and culture in Hong Kong, Greater China, Asia, and beyond. You can expect a whole range of art styles from renowned artists all over the world. In fact, the architectural brilliance of the museum is a piece of art in itself!

There's more to check out in the West Kowloon neighbourhood after exploring the M+ museum!

M+, 38 Museum Drive, West Kowloon Cultural District, Hong Kong, p. 2200 0217

5. Art Supermarket



Pieces range from pop art to abstracts and more (Photography: Art Supermarket via Facebook)

When it comes to cool art galleries in Hong Kong, you can't beat Art Supermarket. Launched in 2011 by Michael Manzardo, Art Supermarket showcases a wide range of works created by promising Asian and Western artists. Manzardo believes that art is for all and that it should be accessible and affordable, hence the name – Art Supermarket.

Art Supermarket, 1/F, Asiarich Court, 5 Staunton Street, Central, Hong Kong, p. 9422 6120

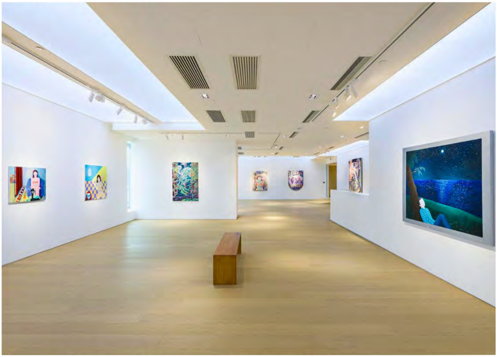
6. Club Third

Club Third spotlights artists influenced by multicultural upbringings (Photography: Club Third via Facebook)

Run by one of our favourite Hong Kong-based artists Cath Love, Club Third is a third culture-inspired art gallery in Sheung Wan. Inspired by a multicultural upbringing, Cath Love wishes to dedicate the space to encourage third culture artists and minority expression. Because pre- and post-colonial Hong Kong invites a diverse range of personalities, and culture doesn't have to be homogenous!

Club Third, Cockloft Floor, Tai Fung Building, No.124 Caine Road, Hong Kong, p. 9306 4693

7. Tang Contemporary Art

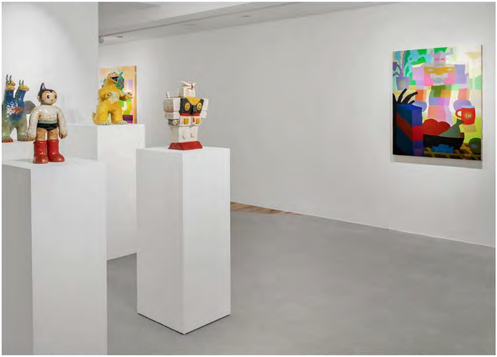


Tang Contemporary Art facilitates cultural conversations (Photography: Tang Contemporary Art via Facebook)

Founded in 1997 in Bangkok, Tang Contemporary Art later branched out to Beijing and Hong Kong, hoping to facilitate cultural exchange between Chinese artists and those abroad. Also dedicated to promoting contemporary art in general, the gallery offers group shows and private tours of exhibitions that showcase an array of international artists.

Tang Contemporary Art has locations in Central and Wong Chuk Hang.

8. Over the Influence



Paintings and sculptures alike are on display at Over the Influence (Photography: Over the Influence via Facebook)

With locations in Hong Kong and Los Angeles, Over the Influence strives to promote vibrant contemporary works created by radical and influential artists from across the globe, such as local illustrator Catherine Grossrieder (a.k.a. Cath Love) and post-war Japanese photographer Nobuyoshi Araki. From street arts to painting, this place is a must-go if you're into modern visual arts, and its location in the heart of the city makes it super accessible.

Over the Influence, G/F – 2/F, 52 Wyndham Street, Central, Hong Kong, p. 2617 9829

9. Pearl Lam Galleries

Wild Silence by Jana Benitez on display at Pearl Lam Galleries in 2022 (Photography: Pearl Lam Galleries via Facebook)

When it comes to art galleries in Hong Kong, Pearl Lam Galleries has been a driving force in the Asian and Western contemporary art scene. Championing artists to challenge cultural norms and perceptions of conventional practice from the region, the gallery has an important role in stimulating culture exchange within Chinese and Asian contemporary art, and we love their passion for creativity and nature.

Pearl Lam Galleries, 601-605 Pedder Building, 12 Pedder Street, Central, Hong Kong, p. 2522 1428

「鳳 Phoenix」Performance by Florence Lam
iisuArt Space
Oct 2022

The concept from the artist:

"Wind" has no ancient expression of its own. It was originally expressed by Oracle Bone Inscriptions, a "Phoenix". Air circulation moved by phoenix wings to shape the wind, representing this invisible condition.

The red phoenix is what we often call the fire phoenix with grumpy temper and red body, belching the flame and surrounded by fire. This is a noble kind of phoenix, and its attribute is similar to nirvana. It also stands for longevity and rebirth, being respected by people.

About the artist:

Florence Lam @florencelamsoyue (b.1992 Vancouver, Canada) is currently based in Hong Kong. Lam works with wonder and magical thinking to fuse together current moral issues with child-like world views through performance art, poetry, video and sound. The aim is to explore the fertility and sterility of the mind manifested through the properties of the biological body and language as a hint to the evolution of human values and spiritual understanding. She obtained her MA Fine Art from Iceland Academy of the Arts in 2017 and her BA Fine Art from Central Saint Martins in 2014.

She worked as a re-performer for "The Cleaner" Retrospective of Marina Abramović at Bundeskunsthalle, Bonn, Germany (2018) and a workshop facilitator for "A Different Way of Hearing - The Abramović Method for Music" at Alte Oper, Frankfurt, Germany (2019), facilitating "The Abramocić Method" workshop with audiences. Since 2020, she has been holding live and online performance art workshops. She is the co-founder and co-curator of Per.Platform, Hong Kong-based live art platform founded in 2021.

Closing 21 January, 2023
Simon Lee Gallery, Hong Kong

Don't miss Josephine Meckseper's exhibition Object Synthesis at our Hong Kong Gallery.

Josephine Meckseper's works, which encompass sculpture, painting, photography, and film, simultaneously expose and encase cultural signifiers and everyday objects to form an investigation into the collective unconscious of our time.

A cosy gallery situated in Sham Shui Po, Kowloon's hippest neighbourhood, Parallel Space is a hub for all sorts of art, culture and design projects. Other than regular workshops and talks, Parallel Space had once hosted a pop-up exhibition displaying only live plants, which should give you an idea how extraordinary this gallery is – and that's just a tip of the iceberg.

While you're there, spend some time at these restaurants in Sham Shui Po.

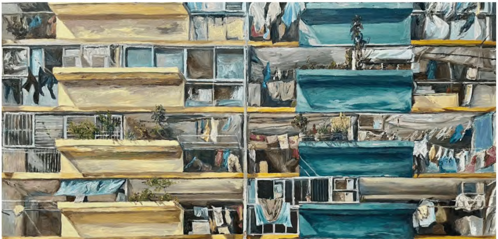
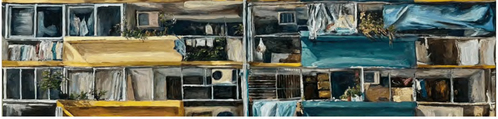
21. Karin Weber Gallery





Artists influenced by the city's dense urban environment (Photography: Karin Weber Gallery via Facebook)

Founded in 1999 by Karin Weber, the eponymous Gallery is one of Hong Kong's oldest contemporary art galleries. Throughout the past two decades (and more), the boutique gallery has engaged well with the public, actively hosting curated exhibitions, seminars and events. The gallery also cultivates its own artists through art fairs, residency programmes, and by employing its network of partners based around the world.

22. Rossi & Rossi

Mother and son founders bring contemporary Asian art to the global stage (Photography: Rossi & Rossi Gallery via Facebook)

Founded by Anna Maria Rossi and her son Fabio in London, Rossi & Rossi is one of the pioneers in contemporary art, particularly in the Asia-Pacific region. The gallery now operates from its headquarters in Wong Chuk Hang, with a new gallery space on Hollywood Road and offices in London. Rossi & Rossi also represents various notable artists from lesser known regions like Tibet and Cambodia, such as Nortse, Leang Seckon, Tenzing Rigdol, and Tsherin Sherpa.

23. Empty Gallery

This art gallery's not actually empty! (Photography: Empty Gallery via Facebook)

Empty Gallery is an exquisite gem hidden in Tin Wan (which lies further west from Aberdeen), featuring mostly abstract and multimedia artworks. This edgy 4,500 square-feet black-cube space is the host to a variety of unconventional art exhibitions, and the gallery also invites internationally renowned underground music producers and experimental jazz musicians to perform, including Fennesz and Peter Brötzmann. Empty Gallery is certainly worth the journey for fans of experimental arts and culture.

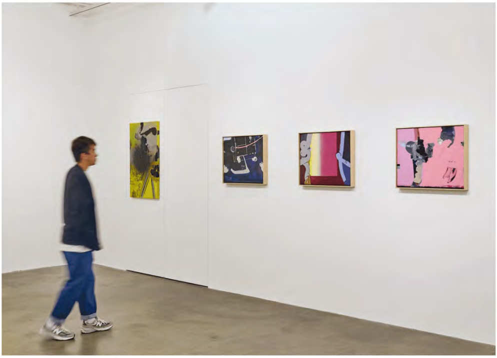
24. Hanart TZ Gallery



Come change your perspective on Chinese art (Photography: Hanart TZ Gallery via Facebook)

Director Johnson Chang has been active in curating Chinese exhibitions since the 1980s and has taken on a number of projects in mainland China. Hanart TZ opened in 1983 with the mission of introducing new Chinese contemporary art both to the Asia region and internationally. The gallery regularly hosts exhibitions and programs every month to educate visitors about Chinese culture and the significance of Chinese art in today's age.

27. Tai Kwun

Come for the art, stay for the history at Tai Kwun (Photography: 大館 Tai Kwun via Facebook)

Technically a 'programme' rather than an actual gallery, Tai Kwun Contemporary is the visual art aspect of Tai Kwun. Commissioning artists from Hong Kong and beyond, Tai Kwun Contemporary presents around half a dozen exhibitions a year. With over 1,500 square metres of gallery and library space, spanning across three storeys, Tai Kwun Contemporary prides itself in its museum-standard curations and its identity as one of the leaders of art in Asia. This is certainly a space that draws us back again, and again.

An industrial hub constructed in the 1970s, JCCAC was given new life when it was converted into an artist village in 2008. Since then, the building has been providing space and facilities at affordable prices for those who wish to set up their own studios, and is now the base of around 140 artists and cultural organisations. Other than visiting the studios and regular exhibitions, those of you who like to get hands on with arts and crafts should head to JCCAC's quarterly handicraft fair, during which you'll be able to take part in workshops, guided tours, rooftop screenings and live music performances – sounds exciting!

31. Sin Sin Fine Art

Who knew Indonesia was hiding these art gems? Sin Sin reveals all. (Photography: Sin Sin Fine Art via Facebook)

Led by visionary Sin Sin Man, Sin Sin Fine Art has been a pioneering force in Hong Kong's contemporary art scene since 2003. During her frequent travels to Indonesia, she became enamoured with the work of local artists and was inspired to showcase their talent back home. As Hong Kong's first gallery to exhibit Indonesian contemporary art, Sin Sin Fine Art opened new international windows onto this vibrant creative community. Fueled by Sin Sin's passion for inspiring works from around the world, the gallery cultivates a collection focused on substance over trends. This sincere approach has proved fruitful, with many of Sin Sin's exhibited artists going on to gain global recognition.

✨🌅 Have you noticed that sunrises in Hong Kong can be quite dramatic and full of purple hues?

📷 Here our artist Vivien Liu (@vdubl) managed to capture Central at the dawn of a new day. The light and colour offer a dramatic new perspective of the bustling city. The beautiful calmness before the city awakens.

With a mission to celebrate artistic power in Hong Kong and give exposure to local artists' creative work, photography art gallery Bamboo Scenes opened to massive success. The online gallery features an exclusive range of unique art pieces by local talents that are priced reasonably, so it's more accessible to everyone. It's definitely one of our favourite photography and NFT art galleries in Hong Kong, and also the perfect spot to pick up a little slice of the city, as seen through creative eyes.

This online gallery started by two French entrepreneurs features affordable works by a selection of local and international emerging artists. Placing an emphasis on supporting talented creatives and delivering quality products to their customers, the gallery houses a range of prints to suit any home, including architecture, streetscapes, black and white and abstract. They also hold regular exhibitions across the city, so keep an eye out.

Moments to last a lifetime: Best portrait photographers in Hong Kong

by Min Ji Park • 24 Aug 2023

Frame your special moments with these portrait photographers (Photography: TimeImage via Canva Pro)

Whether for corporate headshots or personal portraits, first impressions always count. Trust these portrait photographers in Hong Kong to capture your best self with style and flair.

Taking professional portraits and headshots is an artistic endeavour that's often overlooked in the modern age of iPhone cameras and selfies. Special moments, first impressions, and lasting memories can all be encapsulated in a single snapshot. Your professional headshot is what people see before any business lunch or event, while personal portraits have the power to preserve the ineffable, from romantic moments in weddings to someone's true inner essence.
